Tom Steele, one of the most popular men of the Sioux City live stock commission, was not at Hot Springs for the reason that he was in Washington, D. C., attending the session of congress, of which he is a member. The following telegram was sent to him on the second day of the convention, by the Sioux City men in attendance:

"Hon. T. J. Steele, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.—Hot water, hot town, hot time. Bees buzzing, birds singing, grasshoppers full grown. Bunch busy boosting and dodging water. Off for Casper tonight. We miss you in the white lights."

CONTEST FOR SECOND PLACE

Omaha and Kansas City are contestants for position next to Chicago, the largest live stock market in the world, both claiming the honor of second place. Omaha handles more head of live stock than Kansas City, but as Omaha is the leading sheep market and Kansas City is ahead on cattle, the total value of the stuff handled at the latter place is greater than at the former.

The total receipts of cattle, hogs and sheep at the four leading markets for the year 1915 were as follows: Chicago, 13,847,059 head; Omaha, 7,129,594 head; Kansas City, 6,308,911 head, and St. Louis, 4,231,618 head.

FARM AND STOCK PAPERS

Did you ever think how many splendid papers there are devoted to agriculture and live stock raising? There are a lot of them, and they make good reading, not only for farmers and stockmen, but for the families of all the people.

We will be pleased to furnish other papers at a discount from regular subscription price, when taken in connection with a subscription to The Nebraska Stockman. One of the papers that we club with is the Farmer and Breeder, an interesting semi-monthly paper published at Sioux City, Iowa, at one dollar per year, three years for two dollars. For the next few weeks, or until further notice, we will receive subscriptions for the Farmer and Breeder and The Nebraska Stockman, both one year for one dollar, or the two papers three years for two dollars.

Address all orders to THE NEBRASKA STOCKMAN, Alliance, Nebr.

Have you something about the home or place of business that is of no more value to you? It may be the very thing someone else is looking for. Convert it into cash through an ad in The Herald Want Department.

Bunah Commandery No. 26, Knights Templar, observed Easter by attending services in a body, twenty-five strong, in full uniform, at St. Matthews Episcopal church. A sermon appropriate to the occasion was preached by Dean Shaw, the church being prettily decorated with Easter lilies. Special Easter music was rendered.
